WITH COMPLIMENTS OF THE SEASON

Nemo 1910 SPECIAL $1.00

TO-MORROW MONDAY

The Nemo 1910 Special is equal in style, fit, material and finish to any $2.00 corset in the market.

An up-to-date model; will fit any figure—slender, medium or stout.

1910 SPECIAL
of one white corset; has our new "suspender" bone supporters, which produce the ultra-slim figure; medium long hip; straight, flat back; sizes 19 to 39 to begin with.

Thousands of women are waiting for this Sale—they KNOW WHAT IT MEANS. Ready-to-morrow morning.

A New "Nemo" Corset
Self-Reducing, No. 405

Stout Women! : : : : Attention!

The greatest "reducer" corset ever made is the new Nemo No. 405. It has two new features of great value.

FIRST: The new "Hollow Bands" (an improvement over the "Belt" system) which is extra wide and properly supports the shoulders over underarms.

SECOND: A new "Hollow" long skirt effect, which works around to the front, which produces the ultra-slim figure; medium long hip; straight, flat back; sizes 19 to 39 to begin with.

No. 405 for tall and medium figures $4

No. 403 for short stout figures $4 the Boston Credit Company of Lawrence gained his freedom in New York yesterday although in the Tombs prison under fourteen indictments and liable, if convicted, to be sentenced to 115 years in State Prison. All other appeal that the prisoner

At the same time word was received here today that Miss Ethel Marshall, an elder sister of Margaret, is dying at a Newark, N. J., hospital from typhoid

Not a word has been heard from Mr. Marshall since he left home a week ago to go to the bedside of his dying daughter, a young Tufts graduate who formerly worked in Boston. He received word that he was charged with stealing $107,000 in money and goods. Before he was indicted he fled to Europe. He was traced to Berlin, where he was arrested through the clever unwitting aid of Poindexter authorities.

despondency and started South under the impression that it was his elder daughter because Miss Ethel had not been well. He knew that she had been ill from typhoid and thought she might have wandered South and there, in a new attack

The whole town is wrought up over the tragedy that has come into the life of the Marshalls. They have been one of the most prominent families in this city for many years. The parents of the girl were followed by a wife by every one here.

The Filene Annual White Sale

New York

The Sale Known Throughout New England as the Best Time to Buy Foreign and Domestic Undermuslins

Yokohama

The old established Sale at Filene's, which grows larger and larger each year—based on the attractive qualities that make up the Special Sale lots—fine materials, excellent finish, improved fitting lines and innovations in style.

Styles to be found only at Filene's.

We know what is most in demand and are ready with large supplies at saving prices.

The feature that induces so many thousands of people to come to this Sale the day and week after Christmas is this—New, fresh, well-made garments, in present fashion, as low in price as older garments in markdown sales.

Paris

Grande Vente
de Lingerie
Chez
Filene

No goods of doubtful quality or want measure.

Every garment in the Sale intrinsically worthy—and actual values at a glance that are different.

Ahead of season styles at January prices.

This is the time when the stocks are largest, when the variety for selection is biggest—when the prices are lowest—when many women buy a season's supply in one single purchase, because of the savings.

Keep this in mind when shopping Monday—We held our Quarterly Clearance Sale only four weeks ago. You get new, fresh garments in this sale as low in price as the markdown goods now so generally on sale. Newer goods at the same prices, hence, better values.

SHOPPING VERSUS OPERA AS SOCIETY GREEN'S CAR WAS

Functions Wait While Even the Demurely Gay Debutantes Patronize Department Stores Instead of Reigning in State at Ball or Party.

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

THOUGH a mass of debutantes and billy wags plump the glories of a true New England Christmas—the family reunions, country house parties and the hundred and one other events which this day of days always brings in its train.

The past week over the debutantes and their happy affairs were lost sight of in the mad rush of Christmas shopping, and from a social standpoint it was the duller week of the winter. After the gay whirl of the past month it was more or less a relief to sit to just relax in the preparations for the Yuletide joys.

The legend beautiful worked its annual miracle and hearts glowed and blossomed into love and thoughtfulness for others.

Little Lords and Ladies Bountiful, on jerseys mellowed, bent, were a pretty part of the great Christmas pageant. Boston, far famed for its charity, has actually increased the virtue of virtue to the little children, and those rich in this world's goods find the greatest part of their Christmas joy in just making happy the little children of the poor.

Brilliant Assemblages Wake Opera Gala Event

PRACTICALLY the only counter attraction to the Christmas shopping and the week has been the opera and the ballet. The opera has been the more brilliant and the ballet the more demure.

Even Monday night the attendance was not so great as it has been in the past. For a Monday night it was something to see. Of course, there was a smattering of fresh blood and a few young girls, but they were few.

One of the loveliest of the young girls there was Miss Ruth Huggins, who is of from Washington visiting her aunt, Mrs. Huggins, and who was handsome in white satin, the bodice trimmed with lace and aubergine of pink velvet.

Miss Ruth Huggins, who came with her mother, Mrs. Huggins, and her sister, Miss Huggins, was in white satin and aubergine of pink velvet.

MRS. LARZ ANDERSON'S FAVORITE PHOTOGRAPH

The above photograph of Mrs. Anderson has never been published in a newspaper, and was specially obtained for the Sunday American. While it is not Mrs. Anderson's most recent portrait, it is the one which she considers most truly represents her. Mrs. Anderson is very wealthy and maintains a residence in Washington as well as in Boston. She recently gained prominence as a writer of several stories for children.

Mrs. Larz Anderson, who is a very wealthy woman, has a residence in Washington as well as in Boston. She is a very popular woman and is known for her philanthropic work. She has been married to Mr. Larz Anderson for many years and they have several children. Mrs. Anderson is a very active woman and is involved in many social and charitable organizations. She is a very well-known figure in the Boston and Washington social circles. Her portrait, as shown in the photograph, is a very elegant and dignified one. She is wearing a dark dress with a high collar and a brooch, which is a very fashionable style for the time. Her hair is dark and styled in a way that is typical of the early 20th century. The photograph is a black and white portrait, which is a common format for formal portraits of the time. The background of the photograph is a simple, light color, which makes the subject stand out. The overall impression is one of a very refined and sophisticated woman.

DEBUTANTES HAVING LAST FLING AT THE GAITIES OF SEASON

Pace Has Been Breathless, Yet They Are Loath to Step Into Background, While Older Members of Society Have Their Innings.

DEBUTANTES, it was thought, were the last of their kind, the last of the season's social life. But now, after a week of breathless activity, they are loath to step into the background, while the older members of society have their innings.

One might think they'd only too willing to stand by and rest while their older sisters-in-law and friends have their innings. But they have had just enough to make them want more, so their season does not end in a lull.

Their season does not end in a lull. They are loath to step into the background, while the older members of society have their innings. They are still very much in the center of the social scene.

CHRISTMAS, WITH STRONG REALTY MARKET, BRINGS JOY TO DEALERS

REALTY BROKERS SEE GREAT YEAR AHEAD

Believe Market Has Entered on Another Long Period of Prosperous Times.

LARGE DEALS ARE PENDING

Number of Downtown Holdings Expected to Change Hands During Coming Week.

By FRANK A. LEBEL.

CHRISTMAS DAY closed a week of fairly good trading in the realty market although the volume of transfers did not come up to the mark set by the previous weeks of the month. This falling off, however, was due to the holiday season, for many who would otherwise have been dealing in the market turned their thoughts to other matters and consequently the market cooled.

This slump will not be serious and is not prolonged, for there are a number of big deals, involving downtown properties, now pending, and many of these are expected to be closed within the coming week. Changes in the market will be made by the closing of the year, and the volume of business is expected to be very large.

Approach of the new year, the realty records made during the year, the activity in the realty market and the volume of business, all point to the fact that the market is in a very strong position to meet the challenges of the coming year.

The volume of business in the realty market during the year was very large, and the volume of business is expected to be very large in the coming year. CRIMINAL DECEIT IN FLIMSY HOUSES

Washington Architect Cries Out Against Cheap Sales' Build- ing Methods.

HOMES ALL "LOOK NICE"

Then in Three Months Roof Leaks, Plaster Falls and the Floors Sags.

ONE of the prominent architects of the country who resides in Washington has in an article published in the Washington Post, shown up the cheap building methods of the "cheap sales" men, and asserts that the new building methods are a disgrace to the profession. He points out that the houses built by these men are all "look nice" when first seen, but in three months the roof leaks, the plaster falls, and the floors sag.

YOU'LL BE 'DOWDY, SAYS FASHION!

It's Quite Necessary, You Know; Boston Society Has Caught the Fad.

Nature's arbiters of fashions for women is made

If you're not tall, you must get tall. That's all there is to it. "So dumb" goes in society now, but if they want to be rated as stylish and even "very modern" does. As well be dead as overly old-fashioned. There's no help for it, girl, you've just got to be tall. . . . better a willow.

Nature has little to do with this style being tall, and yet Nature has done much for women as growing taller, generation by generation. Athletics have done a lot of it. Then high heels and high modes dressing the hair are used as auxiliaries.

[illegible]

Why, one agent who has the reputation of a row of very desirable houses in most of the city, says that he has lately sold this thing the other day in a most practical way. A family had just leased one of the houses. The agent happened around to see that the family was in the enjoyment of his new tenement and started him by saying "These chalet-floors are too low to suit you, aren't they?" "Yes," he replied, "I hate to give up the house."

More and More Changes.

"Never had any trouble with them before," murmured the agent, looking at the big, burly, bearded chandler with the practical air.

Just then her daughter came in and told her that the tailor had said that the girl saved dangerously close to the present prices. The tailor went to the owner of the house and he actually had to reduce the cost of the dress because the women of today are having a talk. The same girl has taken her to the skirt and she has taken her to the dress. In 1910 a 41 inch skirt was considered to be very long. Today a modern modiste will tell you that a skirt that is 41 inches long is a skirt that this is the common length for the more expensive imported garments.

Such Costly Dresses.

that her daughter's wedding troupe was costing about one third more than it had. The modiste pointed out to her that her daughter was about chest-high tall like her mother and that the added cost of material accounted for everything.

And so it goes. Fashion has decreed that athletes be helped in so small measure and the women of today must see ceilings raised, chandeliers popped as high to clear hats, doors chucked to make room for the bulky furniture of the new ones built to conform - All just to cause it to be proper thing now for women to be tall and still taller.

SAVED FROM SCIDE:

Man with Splendid Baritone Voice Rescued from Down-and-Out Club.

From suicide to a triumphant song, from the cold, dark, dreary midnight streets of Boston, half-famished, wild, more than eligible for life membership in the Down-and-Out Club, a man with a magnificent baritone voice shuffled the 200 men...

In all the thousands of cases, who have come to the attention of Superintendent Oliver C. Elliott was for two years has seen the never-ending procession of his miserables' passing through the portal, some to a new life, some hopeless sinking into their graves he said.

"This man," said Mr. Elliott, who said he had been watching him since last March Wednesday night and decided to save his life. Wandering through the streets at midnight, he saw him sitting on a bench waiting service. He was a Jew. Something one of his kind touched him, and he went home and turned over a new leaf. He was now a Christian and the result of what he had

$1,500,000 FOR EMPLOYEES

Chicago Surpasses All Records

as Christmas gifts—a sum never equal in the city's history—was distributed in a year in the business and financial world. Two big concerns alone increased the grand total in Chicago by little more than a million through their profit-sharing plans—half million distributed by the International Harvester Co.; another half million by the General Company. It is estimated that at least $1,500,000 has been distributed to employees.

Death was due to heart failure.

SURPRISE IN THE "STREET"
Deposits of $65,000,000 Cornered in Greatest Money Game of the Age.

NEW YORK, Dec. 25.—The game of checkers for the wealth of the country, which is being played by J. P. Morgan and John D. Rockefeller, has been made about a draw by a sensational and unexpected move by the old oil master of the game. John D. made the last jump and took down just $25,000,000. It's Morgan's next move.

Though the game is being conducted in Wall street, with only the financiers as spectators, it is the people's money that is in the game. Neither side is betting a dollar. The only stake is the control of the money life of the people. The insurance companies and the life insurance companies of the United States are all in the game. Opening Gun of Big War.
Of course Rockefeller is not playing him. It can't spare the time from golf. The other time will be in the hands of Speyer & Company, the big international banking house which stands J. P. Morgan is playing for him.

STEEL TRUST EARN 20 PER CENT. RETURN

Usual Holiday Shut-Down Curtailed Because of Press of Business—Copper Merger Progressing.

By THOMAS C. SHOTWELL.
NEW YORK, Dec. 25.—Most significant of all Christmas gifts this year was the announcement by the Steel Trust that in the Pittsburgh district only forty-eight hours of idleness would be permitted on account of the holiday.

Instead of two weeks usually given. This strikes the buyers of steel in all parts of the land, and it is more cheering to the workmen than the $20,000,000 bonus distributed by the trust.

The Steel Trust closes the year with enough orders and specifications on its books to run half a year without any more new business. It confidently expects the greatest year in its history and it is already earning at the rate of 20 per cent. on its stock. The prosperity of the Trust is also well illustrated by the complete failure of the recent attempt to start labor troubles in it.

An announcement of another kind comes from Butte, where the Amalgamated and Clark interests threaten to close all mines in the district if the labor agitation is not stopped at once. This is not a direct blow at labor, but is an indirect attempt to restrict production in that area as part of the great merger plan that has been progressing for several weeks.

When the merger is completed the mines in the Butte district will be operated only once in three years. The great production of the immediate future will come from the so-called porphyry group, where the ore is so abundant that it can be mined at a profit in the open air. All conservative houses are warning their clients to unload whatever stocks they may happen to own in the Butte district, and to invest in the new business.

Further progress was made in the copper merger by the effort announced that Utah Copper had taken in London Consolidated, and would have to pay for the stock of the latter company in the form of the Nevada Consolidated. Stockholders of the latter company are beginning to favor the merger, and the whole deal will progress smoothly. As soon as the merger is completed the Utah Copper will be in a position to produce a secondary merger. Stock is being accumulated, and calls are being put on the Colorado-Hank stock for that purpose. The advance in the last week of Monday, Ray Consolidated, Ray Central, Inspiration and others of the porphyry that will not enter the merger is significant of the great merger to independent that can produce copper at a low cost.

Significant among the events of the advance in the "Panda" dividend and the increase of the Pennsylvania Company dividend following it. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company will increase its dividend to 7 per cent. early in the new year. Union Pacific is expected to raise its dividend to 12 per cent. following an advance of the Southern Pacific rate to 7 per cent. Consolidated Gas, "Panhandle" and Rock Island preferred are also expected to raise their dividends in the new year. These dividends are made necessary by the federal tax law, which forces all corporations to make a really correct showing of earnings.

Great excitement prevailed at the end of the week in the Rock Island securities. In Washburn preferred and in Denver. The stock was full of talk of a transactional line. Rumors that Rock Island preferred would be retired with a bond are not credited. It is more likely that a transactional line in ready-made railway property will be put on the market. It is certain to be included in it, but whether the Western and will be the St. Paul and Chicago & Northwestern, or whether the Pacific will be sought by the Union Pacific, is still a matter of speculation. The Denver & Rio Grande and Western Pacific, cannot be said with certainty yet.

It developed during the week that Chesapeake & Ohio is earning at the rate of 20 per cent. on its stock and Missouri Pacific at 15 per cent. All the Hanley roads are very prosperous. The closest working agreement possible will be made between the Hanley roads and the Rock Island. The Chesapeake & Ohio will be fully employed with the freight gathered from all parts of the continent by these two systems. That port promises to rival New York in the future.

Among the stock increases of the week were by the United States Rubber Company amounting to $5,000,000 of 4 per cent. bonds, and $750,000 of first preferred stock. The price of rubber has been very high. The rubber industry is on a boom in all parts of the world. Rubber stocks are in urgent demand by investors in both New York and London.

GLOOMY HOLIDAY FOR AUTO VICTIM

Young Campano in Hospital,

Loses Half Its Income.

With one of its bread-winners ill in a hospital, yesterday was a gloomy Christmas for the Campano family at No. 21 Joiner street, Charlestown. When rent, food and clothing bills for seven persons have to be paid out of an income of $9 a week, it means empty stockings and a serious curtailment to the Christmas merriment if $4 is taken out of the weekly income.

Yesterday evening Anthony Campano, seven years old, was riding on the shoulders of his father and brother in the rear of a team of Chelsea and Joiner streets when he was struck by the automobile of Mrs. Henry Potter of No. 82 Commonwealth street. Both of Anthony's elbows were broken and his left collar bone fractured.

He spent Christmas in the Relief Hos-about two months before he will be able to return to work. Near his cot were some flowers and a dish of luscious fruit, the pick of the local market, sent to the injured boy by Mrs. Potter. In one of three small rooms at the head of the dark stairway leading up to No. 21 Joiner street, a child sat upon an uncarpeted floor.

Staking a Life on a Forlorn Hope those who have a right to look to him for support!

The prospector, who goes from rock to rock, wasting a life in the hope of some day "striking it rich," is at least honest.

The fortune that he hopes to find will be obtained—if it ever is obtained—at the expense of nobody else.

But the business gambler, the man who hopes that some mysterious rise in Wall Street values will make him rich, or who thinks that he can tell whether wheat is going up or down, is NOT honest. He knows, if he thinks at all, that whatever he gains somebody else will lose.

No yet undiscovered wealth of the soil will enrich him. He hopes to get money away from other people. His gambling is of the same order as that of the dice thrower or the race track "poker." Not a cent that he makes but will have the taint of dishonesty upon it.

John W. Gates, all his life a player for big stakes, and regarded in most quarters as a highly successful man, lately addressed a gathering of earnest people in Texas.

He devoted his address to gambling and its evils, and warned his hearers that no success worthy of the name can ever be gained by reckless hazard and venture.

If Gates, past fifty, and widely experienced with life in all its phases, has found that the gambling disease is a thing to be avoided, surely young men beginning life ought to let it alone.

Before the committee of the United States Senate now investigating the evils of race track gambling—one of the most dangerous and vicious forms of vice to be found in the world—appeared a man who has owned race tracks and poolrooms, made a book at the race track and a handbook in the streets, and followed the races for the greater part of his life.

He told the listening Senators that the percentage of chances against the gambler in a poolroom was something like 200 or 250 to 1. He gave specific facts and instances, all out of his own experience.

And, although the proposed congressional measure to prohibit the sending of race track their business. There ARE no arguments in favor of it.

Now, turn to the news of the year just passed and read of the failures—the business houses gone to ruin, carrying with them hundreds of innocent men and women; the suicides, the once respected bankers or brokers on their way to Federal prisons. More gamblers—more men crazy to get ahead of their fellows, and willing to stake their lives upon the chance of doing so.

When a panic seizes the country, wrecking business, sending stocks down, filling the jails with clerks and cashiers and the cemeteries with suicides, what does it mean?

That gambling is a vice that is not confined to the faro table or the poolroom, but invades the business of the country and has railroad and factories and steamship lines for its stakes.

"Something for nothing," "easy money," "fortunes without work"—glittering and alluring phrases are these. They have sent more men to destruction than war has ever done.

The gambler is everywhere. He is the man who speculates in wheat or cotton and makes trebly heavy the overload already carried by the poor.

He is the manipulator who engineers a corner in stocks, eventually bringing about a crash which involves hundreds of more honest men and sweeps many a really earned fortune away forever.

He is the village banker who takes the money he has really earned in legitimate business and bets it in a bucket shop, with the result that his customers go to ruin and he goes sometimes—to the penitentiary.

And he is the ordinary man on the street, who, dazzled by the tales of wealth suddenly acquired, is never content till the last cent in his pocket is invested in some scheme as rickety as it is promising.

If you think that the gambling vice is not pretty thoroughly fastened on this country, look at the prosperity of the bucket shops, the success of wildcat stock ventures, the winnings made by the merciles, rascally promoters of get-rich-quick games that promise to pay 500 per cent a year upon an investment.

The gold-broker operator would never make a cent but for the gamblers among the population. The man who sells green goods might as well go out of business but for the gamblers among his rural patrons.

Yet all these scoundrelly schemes prosper, and will prosper, until all men learn the stupidity of getting something for nothing and are content with what they can earn honestly and without robbing their neighbor.

Of course, the professional gambler, whether he sits behind a faro table or rigs a stock market, is merely a plain, vulgar thief. He is not a gambler at all, for he takes no chances.

There is much talk of honest gamblers; but, as applied to the professional, no such thing exists.

The fellow who deals faro, or who owns the den in which it is dealt, knows exactly how little chance his customers have of winning. He is less of a gambler than the burglar who breaks into a house at night and steals the silverware, for the burglar does take the chance of arrest. The gambler, paying for protection, takes no chances at all.

But the professional gambler could not exist were it not for the other gamblers who become his victims. He knows that as soon as he has lured one man into his den he has made a permanent player. Drunkards can be cured; thieves can be reformed. Gamblers, once the vice is fastened upon them, continue to be gamblers till the end.

The young man who begins by playing a little "innocent" poker MAY confine his gambling to that. But if there is in him that thirst for chance that is in at least six men out of twenty, he had better leave poker alone.

For one gambler who actually plays admittedly gambling games there are five who gamble with their lives—gamble in business, in everything with which they have to deal.

Watch these men and see what happens to them. Also see what happens to the innocent that they drag down with them.

Then settle in your own mind whether sure rewards of honest industry are not to be preferred to a life of feverish unrest and unhappiness and an almost absolute certainty of ruin at the last.

O into the sagebrush deserts of Nevada, where here and there gray rocks crop out above the sand, or in the mountains of Alaska, whose streams have found and carried away the gold that is now hidden in the sand bars of the Yukon, and you will find a curious race of men.

Old, grizzled, gnarled with rheumatism, they still move slowly over the rocks, chipping here, hammering there, hunting unceasingly for gold—gold, that will mean "easy money"—"something for nothing."

The best years of their lives—nearly ALL the years of their lives—have been given to this fateful quest. They were strong men once, powerful in body, determined in mind—men who might have made fortunes for themselves had they followed safer callings.

Most of these men are gamblers; some few miners with trained knowledge seek fortune in the wilds, and by their success add to the great mineral resources of mankind. But most gold seekers who hope to "strike it rich" are gamblers.

Once the lust of unearned wealth seizes him, he is beyond cure.

Like the drunkard, the gambler knows better the danger of his vice than any one else. Arguments he will listen to, and agree with, frankly admitting that he is ruining himself and his friends, owning that his course will probably land him eventually in jail.

But when the last argument is made he will smile grimly to himself and go on gambling as madly as before.

A little spouse goads him on to further venture; repeated loss only serves to make him sure that sooner or later his luck will

DRAGGING OCEAN DEPTHS FOR NEW FISHES TO EAT.

Science Planning to Explore the Mysteries of the Sea.

THE exhaustion of the food fishes near our coasts and on the surface of the ocean in regions accessible to civilized countries is exciting anxiety all over the world.

Within a limited number of years the great supply of food now obtained from the sea may come to an end.

Already the coasts of European countries are fished out, and fishermen are compelled to go further and further for their catch. The result is a constant rise in the price of fish.

Thus the alarming situation to be dealt with.

The Government of Norway, where the people depend very largely on fish for their food, and some leading English scientists have formed a joint expedition to search the depths of the ocean for new food fishes. The Government supplies the ship Michael Sars, and the scientific work is under the direction of Sir John Murray, who made a great reputation by his discoveries with the ship Challenger. The researches will be based on in the Atlantic Ocean.

The Michael Sars has already brought up from a depth of over half a mile 225 fish, one hundred of which belong to new species.

This gives one a good idea of the vast number of unknown fish still waiting to be discovered in the ocean.

One part of the work of the expedition will consist in locating the spawning banks of the cod and other food fish, and calculating from them what the total supply of adult fish may be. Attempts will then be made to increase the total supply by planting the spawn in favorable places.

The trawls and nets of the Michael Sars will bring up many strange and grotesque creatures from the ocean depths, some of which may prove edible, while others certainly will not. There is, for instance, the amazing electric light fish, which carries a luminous bulb above its nose to guide it in the darkness of the ocean depths. There are many other fish which carry lights for the same purpose, some being arranged along the sides of the body and others on long feelers. Several new species of this class will perhaps be found.

There are many deep-sea fish which have peculiar trap-like mouths for catching the minute animals which swarm in the sea.

Of this kind is the pelican fish, which is gifted with an elastic lower jaw that enables it to take in three or four quarts of water. Then it squirts out the water through its curved teeth and retains the animals for food.

The Michael Sars will make a special point of investigating the Gulf Stream and the various currents that join it. The bottom of the Gulf Stream will be examined. Special interest will be attached to observations with Ekman's new current meter.

An effort will be made with this to measure the rate of currents over oceanic shoals and also in very deep water. Long tubes will be forced into the oceanic bottom deposits, with a view of getting sections of considerable depth. At present we know nothing about marine deposits beyond eighteen fathoms under the Union.

The expedition will make a prolonged investigation of the Sargasso Sea, that extraordinary formation lying between latitude 15 and 35 degrees north and longitude 30 and 50 west in the North Atlantic. Here, through the action of converging currents, the sea weed has been brought together in such a vast mass that it prevents navigation, and in places perhaps furnishes a platform firm enough to walk upon. Little is known about it. Many unknown species of fish probably find refuge under this formation.

The expedition will pursue its investigations from England to Gibraltar and along the coast of Morocco and Madeira, Newfoundland, Iceland and Scotland.

THE HOPE DIAMOND 'HOO DOO'

Psychology Analyses the Curious Trail of Fatalities Which Has Pursued the Owners of the Famous Gem and Explains How Far Science Recognizes the Possible Effect on Human Destiny of an Inanimate Object Which Has Filled the Mind With Fear.

By David Edgar Rice,

Assistant Professor of Psychology in Columbia University.

THE extraordinary series of catastrophes associated with the famous Hope diamond is arousing widespread curiosity and credulity. Under the baleful influence of this remarkable stone, it is asserted, two European dynasties have been overthrown, and assassination, madness and destruction have been the portion of many individuals who came under its rank superstition, but in reality they are all of a piece with buttefa which have become more grotesque to us by reason of their familiarity. Not many of us, perhaps, would take much trouble to preserve the left hind foot of a raven, killed in a cemetery under the light of the crescent moon, but our belief in the evil influence of such objects is not at all universal. According to the account it had been stolen from the crown of the King of France, and it is said that it was the cause of the death of the King of France, Louis XVI., who was executed by guillotine.

The hoodoo, as it has moved back and forth, was started on its perilous career about the middle of the seventeenth century by a French traveler and merchant, Tavernier by name, who brought it to Paris from the East and sold it to Louis XIV., King of France. The diamond was then in the possession of the King, and it was the cause of the death of the King of France, Louis XVI., who was executed by guillotine.

The Diamond Still at Large.
The great diamond disappeared, and it was not until 1812 that it was recovered. It was then in the possession of a Frenchman, and it was the cause of the death of the King of France, Louis XVI., who was executed by guillotine.

The diamond, however, was not the cause of the death of the King of France, Louis XVI., who was executed by guillotine. It was the cause of the death of the King of France, Louis XVI., who was executed by guillotine.

The Murder of the Princess de Lamballe, Who Borrowed the Diamond From Her Friend, Marie Antoinette—From Old Contemporary Print.

There have been a great many of these things, and it is not surprising that they should be so common. The diamond, however, was not the cause of the death of the King of France, Louis XVI., who was executed by guillotine. It was the cause of the death of the King of France, Louis XVI., who was executed by guillotine.

The power of superstition. To the unenlightened mind every object is a source of power, and it is not surprising that they should be so common. The diamond, however, was not the cause of the death of the King of France, Louis XVI., who was executed by guillotine. It was the cause of the death of the King of France, Louis XVI., who was executed by guillotine.

printed out, we find that there is committed, of course, that some of the older opinion that it did actually cause, and that others may be satisfied with the influence over some of its favorably accounted for in the time of possession, at least. It must be admitted, however, that the influence of the diamond is not at all universal.

There is a power of direct communication of one mind with another, otherwise than through the normal operation of the recognized sense organs—that is, without the use of the ordinary means by which we voluntarily communicate with one another.

By means of this mysterious power of direct communication, the mind of the Hope diamond was made conscious of the incidents associated with them, even the superstitions of the past, and it was able to communicate with the mind of the person who owned it. The knowledge of the incidents of the past, and the knowledge of the superstitions of the past, were communicated to the mind of the person who owned it. The knowledge of the incidents of the past, and the knowledge of the superstitions of the past, were communicated to the mind of the person who owned it.

The process is commonly called telepathy, thought-transference, or mind-reading. Little as we know as to the manner in which it is carried on, the actual existence there can be no doubt, if the mind of one who is in contact with the mind of another is able to communicate with the mind of another.

Thus we see that the Hope diamond, though a mere temporary withdrawal of the mind from public knowledge, has been sufficient to bring the attention of the world to the existence of this power of direct communication of one mind with another.

That the newsman must go before the old employs is an ordinary rule of business, which has followed the same law of evolution. In case of shipwreck, for instance, the same great law has been seen working in what might be called a form of moral intoxication.

Why are the civilized nations becoming more aware? Is the result of a new scientific knowledge of the diseases which afflict the "undeveloped" races are being brought to light? Or is it the result of a new scientific knowledge of the diseases which afflict the "undeveloped" races are being brought to light? Or is it the result of a new scientific knowledge of the diseases which afflict the "undeveloped" races are being brought to light?

is placed as an optical bench, to facilitate focusing, which is one of the chief difficulties in the task of cinematographing the actual movements of microbe life. In some cases Dr. Comstock has been obliged to employ a powerful arc current to obtain the necessary light; other instances, when the weather conditions are favorable, he employs sunlight with the aid of a powerful heliostat. The arc lamp, or heliostat, is placed at one extremity of the optical bench, and directed with its light upon the microscope. At the other end, where the operator sits, an extensible dark chamber connects the cinematograph camera with the ultra-microscope. Further on is a lens which condenses the rays of light, and between this lens and the arc lamp

Electricity and Microbes. To quote Professor Bastre again: "This discovery will enable us to obtain a much more thorough knowledge of microscopic preparations studied in histology than was heretofore the case. In bacteriology the passing glimpses acquired with the ultra-microscope will become permanent records. Further, many very important questions in physiology which it is impossible to elucidate in the present state of science will probably be solved by means of the new method."

peculiarities of Blood Corpuscles.

While the correspondent was in Dr Comman's laboratory, he took an ultra-microscope cinematograph record of a drop of his own blood. Under the ultra-microscope it was easy to see, not only the red corpuscles—the circular-shaped corpuscles—and the white corpuscles—the leucocytes—connected together ones, but also the hemokineses or fatty particles, termed the "dust of blood") and to observe the Brownian movements of the lipid particles, and the movements of the corpuscles. Thrown on the screen, these elements can be counted and all their movements observed.

Another ultra-microscopic record of a drop of blood contained microcystidia, the causative agent of the disease of sprillions, similar to a disease that strikes man.

among the great observatories, the location of the latter and the character of their apparatus to determine which part of the skies would better be allotted them to gain best results. For instance, Professor Percival Lowell, perched on the Arizona mountains, had better opportunity of viewing the planet Mars and certain constellations than would the Trecrow tube. The Yerkes telescope of the Chicago University has opportunities that the Melbourne (Austral) Observatory lacked.

instrument which is capable of a magnification of five thousand diameters. This scale could bring the moon within an apparent distance of fifty miles from the observer.

What is called the "penetrative power" of the telescope lies in its light-grasping ability. A twenty-inch lens, apart from its magnification of the image, is endowed with potentiality to draw deeper into space. In a power, it is hoped, will manifest itself by finding intermediate types of stars which have hitherto escaped the ken of the largest instruments showing the transmission from the so-called solar system, which

One of such is a over-the-shoulder, with an oversatiny draping of sapphire tulle fastened at the bottom with pink silk roses.

The bottom of this gown is lavishly embroidered with bugles. The waist is Louis XV. point of sapphire green velvet heavily embroidered with old rose silk bugles. The main assemblage of the combination of sapphire green with pink and old rose is striking, yet most pleasing to the eye.

Royal purple is the color keynote of the last of these five creations: royal purple velvet embroidered with large bouknots and lily designs of cut steel. The gown is worn with an opera cape of ermine and a hat of the same material as the gown, with a yellow bird of Paradise.

A magnificent gown is of black silk over a new shade of champagne silk cut low to the knees with an exquisite border of brilliantly cut jet beneath which is an elegant garniture of a jet bracelet hanging almost to the groins back and forth to the side on front of the skirt. An exquisite draped, ruffled being finished on at the side of skirt with elegant jet ornaments.

A distinctive evening gown is of a pale shade of mauve and covered with applique lace, which in turn, is veiled with delicate tulle. This is really beautifully cut and finished, and is trimmed with tiny pink roses and ribbon. See.

None of these, however, can compare in originality with the new novel creation shown at the end of the drawings I filed on the page.

COMFORTABLE DRESSING OR HOUSE
DRESS.
• • SACQUE • •
TENCENTS FOR EACH

NO. 5535.

EVERY woman needs a dressing sacque. The model here shown is entirely comfortable and practical, and at the same time trim and dainty. The neck edge may be finished with the flat collar or may be trimmed with a frill or ruching.

Either style of sleeve may be developed in full or shorter length. Cotton crepe, wash fabrics, flannel or cashmere are appropriate for this model.

The pattern is cut in six sizes—32, 34, 36, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. It requires 6 yards of 24-inch material for the 36-inch size.

CRIMSON cashmere, with trimming of black velvet, or dotted challie, with embroidery for the yoke, would develop this design most effectively. It is simple in construction, and is made on the lines of the ever popular "French" dress.

The pattern is cut in four sizes—2, 4, 6 and 8 years. It requires 8½ yards of 27-inch material for the 4-year size.

Quaker Oats

In an article published in the Yankee's Companion of September and 1900 Dr. Browne, the great medical authority on diseases of the brain and its disorders,

*There is a lot of talk that seems to indicate that we are as far as we can get on that while it is true that our children do not have a vote, and that

'Oils' are the most valuable of all the cereals and are richer in fats, organic phosphorus and lecithins.

He says oatmeal is gaining ground with the well-to-do of Great Britain. He speaks of it as the mainstay of the Scotch laborers, but says it produces a healthy, well-developed, mentally energetic race.

His experiments prove that well-balanced food such as Quaker Oats not only furnishes the best food for the human being, but also stimulates the thyroid gland, which is intimately connected with the nourishing processes of the body, and the health of the individual depends largely upon its size and activity.

He concludes by saying:

It is probable therefore that the bulk and brawniness of the Nerite are owing to the Scotch has a much more measure due to the stimulation of the thyroid gland by oatmeal porridge in childhood.
